HARVEY RIVER ESTATE

With roots deeply planted in Harvey, the orchards and dairies of our family's farming history are now the backdrop to picturesque rows of vines at Harvey River Estate.

It was in 1928 on the banks of the Harvey River that the first seeds were sown. Almost 100-years and three generations later our family's love of the land and region is as fervent as ever.

The wines of our family are uniquely expressive – hand crafted examples of the of the Geographe wine region. We produce wines with elegance and personality that express their sense of place, and our love of pristine fruit flavours.

The vivid open slopes of vines at Harvey River Estate are a chorus of classic varietals - Chardonnay, Shiraz and Cabernet Sauvignon - that were first planted in the Geographe Wine Region, alongside our recent addition of Barbera, Montepulciano and Moscato. They sing the arias of our Italian heritage in some of Western Australia's most pristine growing conditions.

Our winemaker Stuart Pierce is a purist, and takes a minimal intervention approach to winemaking. A gentle and targeted method for each style of wine. It all starts in the vineyard to allow our winemaking team to reflect and preserve the personality of each varietal's assets in the glass.

FAMILY OWNED

As a township, Harvey is rich in entrepreneurial spirit. Pre and post WWII immigrants, many from Italy, built their livelihoods in the quaint close-knit community, at the northern end of the Geographe Wine Region.

One of those valiant arrivals was Giuseppe Sorgiovanni. It was on the banks of the Harvey River in 1928 that he, a humble Italian immigrant, started his family farming legacy.

Gathering on weekends with uncles and grandparents to make small batch wines was a much loved family tradition. Travelling up to the Swan Valley during the week to bring back trucks of Cabernet and Shiraz was not uncommon. An undeniable streak of competition, to see who would make the best bottles, permeated these sun soaked afternoons.

Growing up in the family business gave Kevin Sorgiovanni (Giuseppe's son) a keen passion for agriculture, a deep understanding and love of the land, business accretment and export experience - a well-rounded resume on which he has built his family's wine venture Harvey River Estate.

Kevin was reared and raised amongst the orchards in Harvey. His first memory; sat in a crate of oranges while his mother was packing fruit. Early impressions running amuck between the rows of citrus trees, and driving tractors during school holidays are now shared with his (four) daughters, who have all grown up in Harvey and within the family businesses.

These days, it is his daughter Juliette who joins him at the helm. Kevin's three other daughters and wife also remain close by to lend a hand. The third-generation of the agriculturally acute Harvey-based family is a hands on operator who's worldliness and eagerness sees her active in most areas of the winery.

The hunger to try something new, the desire to build a bright future, and unwavering support of a close knit family are very much alive today at Harvey River Estate, just as they were almost 100 years ago when the family's first seeds were sown banks of the Harvey River.

OUR VINEYARDS

HARVEY VINEYARD

The varietal diversity and prevailing geographical properties of the Geographe Bay can be tasted in every bottle of our estate's wines.

The 50-acre vineyard is currently in a phase of transformation. Alternative varietals like Tempranillo, Moscato and Montepulciano are the Italian grapes now taking centre stage for upcoming vintages.

As a family who is always evolving and experimenting with winemaking innovation, what else would you expect? Nestled behind the orange orchards, traditional varieties will still be preserved in the Geographe vines, and will continue to produce award winning Chardonnay and Shiraz for years to come.

In addition to the large Harvey vineyard, Harvey River Estate also works closely with and supports a selection of growers from across the Geographe and Margaret River Wine Regions.

Fruits from around Harvey, the flats of Hithergreen, and the country backdrops of Yallingup have been sourced from trusted partners over the years, to create their accoladed line-up of well-rounded wines.

MARGARET RIVER VINEYARD

In 2014 we discovered a 165-acre site in Wilyabrup, which showed great potential as a winery. Formerly a dairy farm, transforming the property into a vineyard was an absolute labour of love.

Today, more than 22-acres are under vines and perfectly positioned to let the crisp and coastal properties of the Margaret River region shine through every drop of wine we make under the Fishbone and Joseph River Estate labels.

The gently sloping terrain of the Wilyabrup estate is a classic pea gravel vineyard. The well-drained soil and north facing plots are home to a number of classic and alternative varieties.

Three hectares of Chardonnay grown across three sites in Margaret River include the Gin Gin clone; the foundation of Western Australia's global dominance with Chardonnay.

The unique Western Australian heritage of the Houghton's clone is included in most of the four hectares of Cabernet.

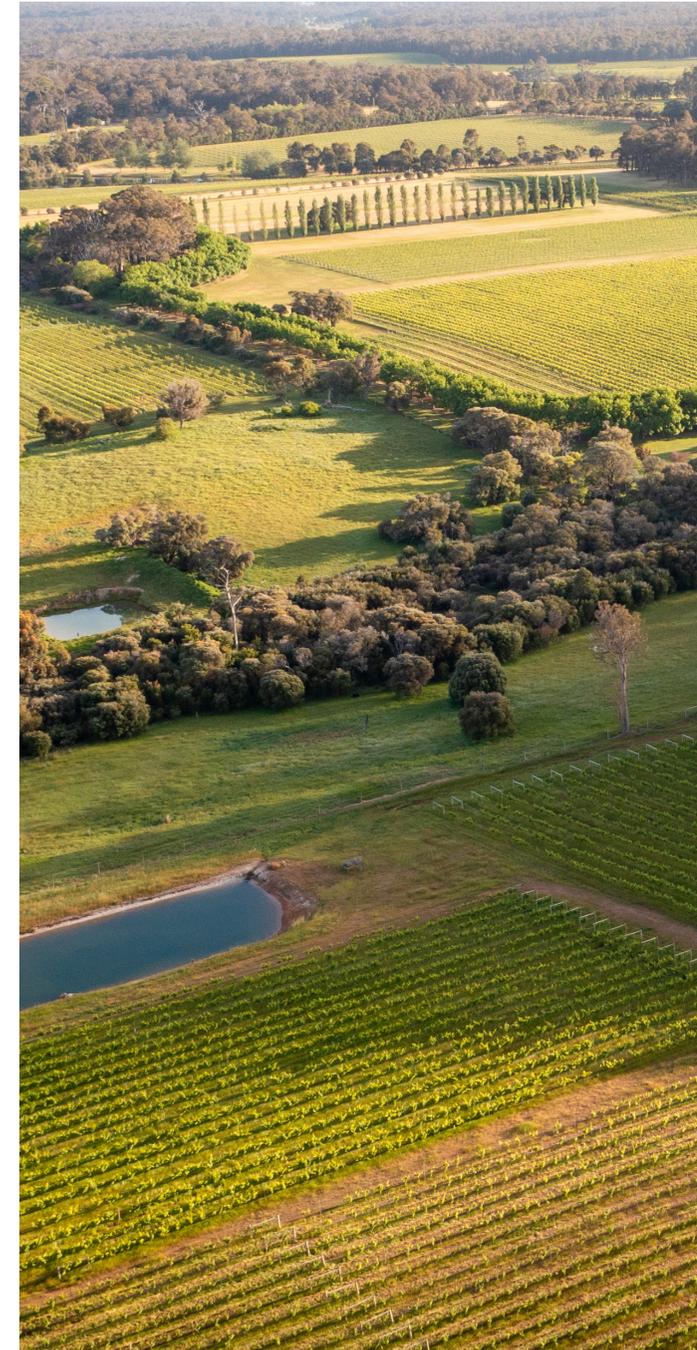

Also grown across three distinct plots, to build diversity and variety in the fruit, the wines benefit from the clone selection which has created some of Margaret River's greatest Cabernet over the years.

Smaller plots of Vermentino, Pinot Noir, Tempranillo and Malbec also call the Fishbone estate at Wilyabrup home.

The neighbouring vineyard we manage at Treeton (in the Margaret River Wine Region) offers beautifully contrasted soil properties to the Wilyabrup site. The dark sandy foundations provide the perfect growing conditions for rows of Shiraz, Gewurztraminer and Sauvignon Blanc.

The fruit is what sings in a glass of our wine, and so soil health, site orientation, fruit diversity and vine condition are the foundation of our treasured vineyards.

We practise minimal intervention wine making, so the true properties of the fruit are featured at the front of every wine.

WINEMAKING

The soils and Mediterranean climate of the Margaret River Wine Region create exceptional growing conditions - heavy winter rainfalls, cool sea breezes, and a dry ripening season.

The distinct coastal location brings vibrancy to fruit, and despite being one of the youngest wine regions in the world, this thriving stretch of coastline is fast becoming a prodigy and claiming international accolades.

The pristine patch of wine country is one of the most geographically spectacular and isolated wine regions in the world.

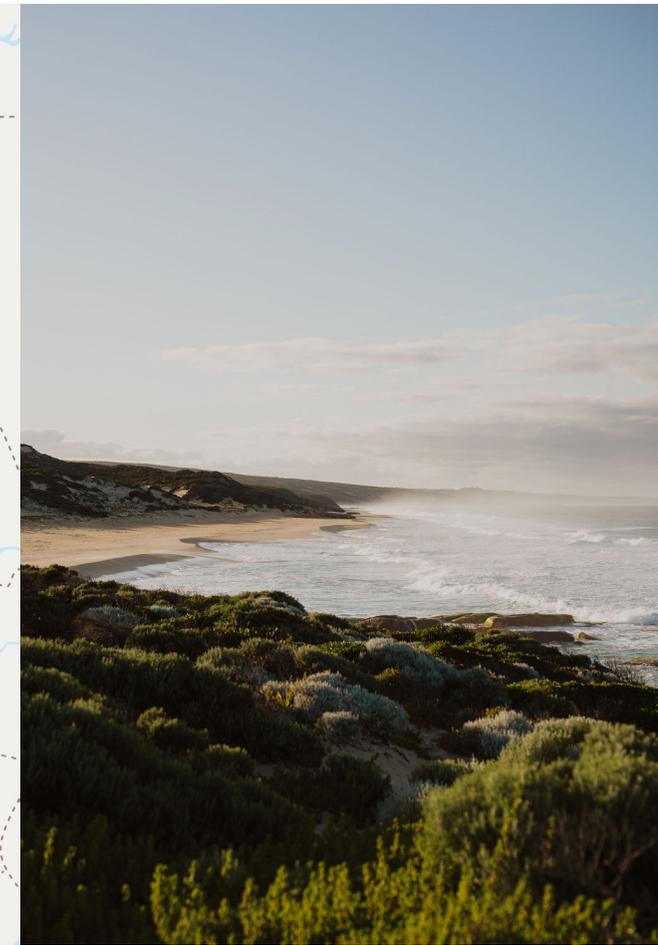

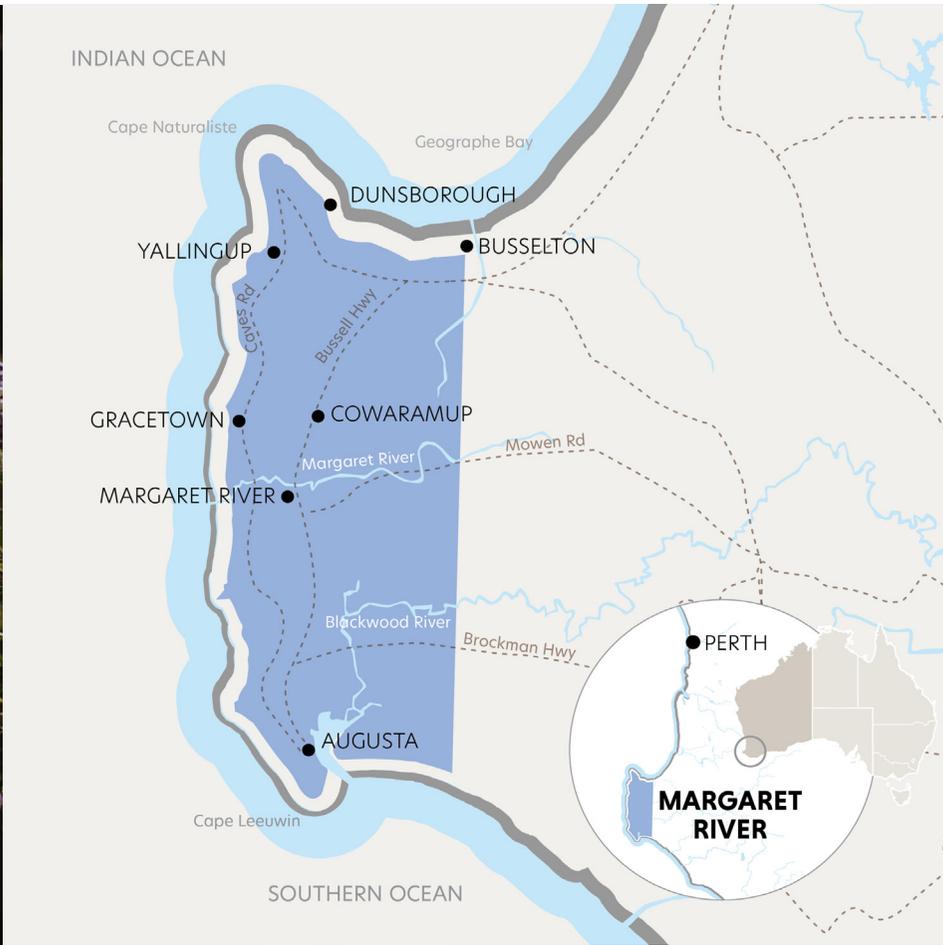

Our guiding principles are to celebrate the land, the vine, and the variety. A purist approach to winemaking.

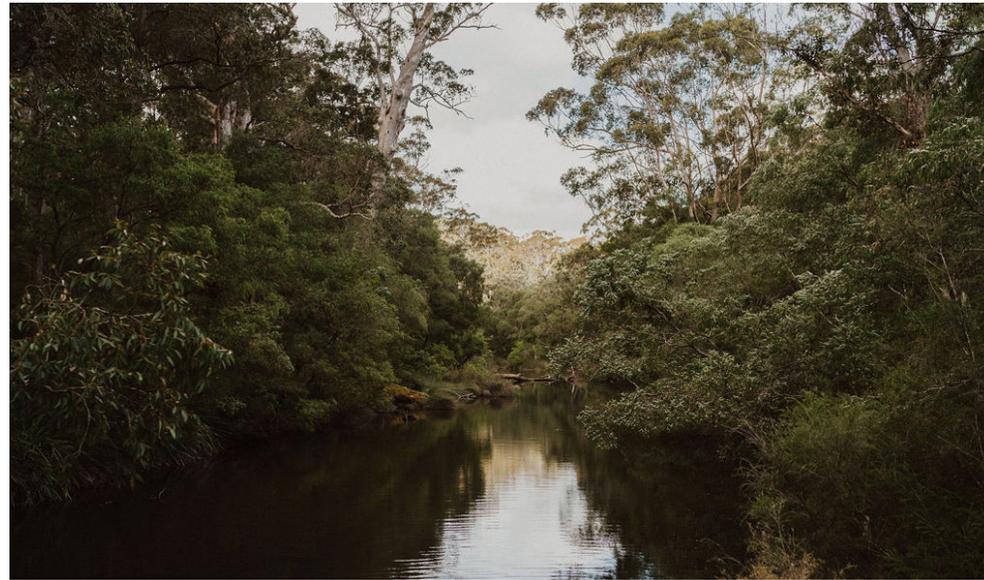

Our head winemaker, Stuart Pierce, is a Jimmy Watson trophy recipient and part of the family. He has worked hand-in-hand with Kevin since 2005, walking the Wilyabrup site with tape measures when Fishbone started.

Together Stuart and Kevin have built an exceptional vineyard in the Margaret River Wine Region, and a line-up of award-winning wines across three distinct labels that celebrate the unique properties of this globally renowned area.

With more than 20 years' experience in the winemaking industry, Stuart's travels through Europe and years working in renowned South Australian wine regions like McLaren Vale, Clare Valley and Padthaway have influenced his dedication to the holistic health of vineyards and delicate approach.
